It's a people business

Throughout Tom's college years, he worked on building exterior work and grew to love the people and the industry. "With the support of my wife, Katelynn, we took on the challenge and launched Resistance Exteriors in 2014," explains Tom. "Not only did we want to provide quality craftsmanship and exceptional customer service, we also wanted to build a business that fosters a positive, healthy lifestyle for people to improve themselves."

"Sometimes we joke that we're not in the exteriors industry, we're actually in the people industry," kids Katelynn. "People are our biggest inspiration and keep us doing what we love. It's the connections you make, the lives you improve, and the homes and businesses you protect. Through this business, we've connected with so many Lake Country residents that we feel truly blessed. This community is filled with some amazing and talented people, and we feel so privileged to work with so many of them over the years."

It all began in high school

Born and raised in Lake Country, Tom and Katelynn began dating in high school. Today their family has grown with children Dallas (18) and Ducati (9). In addition, their family includes a dozen chickens and three adorable cats. "We're really two peas in a pod," says Katelynn. "We both enjoy traveling, fishing and exploring the outdoors."

Katelynn also serves on the Delafield Chamber of Commerce Board as the Vice President. This year Resistance Exteriors was voted 2023 Neighborhood FAVE by Nextdoor.

"Lake Country is our home, and this community is important to us," states Tom, "Resistance Exteriors is a huge advocate for supporting the local community by sponsoring local events, providing charitable donations, and sponsoring youth programs and so much more."
